

MES is Anchored in Learning

February 20, 2017

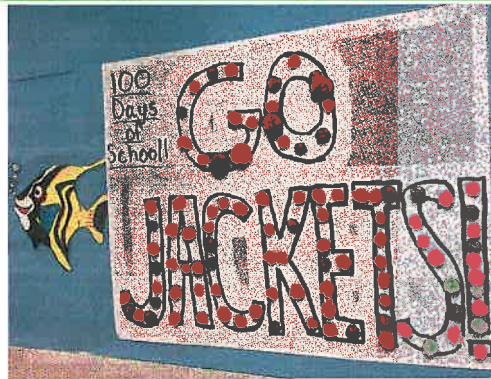

Students across campus receive sailboats to recognize good behavior and then get to come to Mrs. Dowler to post them in the hallway.

MES students recently celebrated the 100th day of school in many ways. Some teachers and kids dressed like they were 100, some made posters, and others used it as part of a Math activity just to name a few.

As part of their Social Studies curriculum, MES 5th graders have been studying the Preamble. These Preamble posters required students to use context clues and break it into 4 parts to do some historical fact-finding in order to write, recite and illustrate them correctly.

Writing has been a focus for all grades this year and here are some examples from Kindergarten and 1st grades. In Kindergarten, students brainstormed, discussed wrote and illustrated things they love. This lesson fit in well with their Valentine's Day celebrations. 1st graders had the opportunity to do a craft and create an item out of "Snow Dough" and then write to describe their creation.
